

EGHC Welcomes Pamela Collier, FNP

1/06/2006

East Georgia Healthcare Center is pleased to announce the hiring of Pamela Collier as a full-time Family Nurse Practitioner in their Reidsville office.

Pamela received her Bachelor of Science in Nursing from Medical College of Georgia in 1987, her Master of Science in Nursing from Medical College of Georgia in 1992 and graduated as a Family Nurse Practitioner from Georgia Southern University in 1995.

Family Nurse Practitioners (FNPs), like physicians, are healthcare providers. They are the principal providers of primary health care and assume responsibility for promoting, maintaining, and restoring the health of individuals and families.

Pamela has worked as a Nurse Practitioner for 10 years in the state of Georgia. Her local work experience includes private practices in Vidalia and Statesboro and emergency care at Tattnall Memorial Hospital in Reidsville. She has extensive experience in OB/GYN, pediatrics, adolescent medicine and emergency medicine.

She was also a Nurse Practitioner for the 165th Medical Squadron of the Georgia Air National Guard and held the rank of Captain.

“We are excited about having a medical provider with an extensive background like Pamela’s on our staff in Reidsville. She is definitely a breath of fresh air to the medical community,” Sanjay Serrao, M.D., EGHC Medical Director

A resident of Sylvania, Pamela grew up in Africa where her parents were missionaries. She feels that this experience helps her to have a unique understanding of other cultures and the challenges people experience of adapting to new culture here in America.

“We have a lot of exciting developments in store for the Reidsville medical community and Pamela will undoubtedly help us to reach our goals, to the benefit of the entire community,” Jennie Wren Denmark, EGHC CEO.
